Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 12 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Very windy in far northwest tonight, mild in south.

This Evening and Tonight:
Winds briefly reaching severe gale or storm force across far northwest and north of Scotland; windy in other northern areas. Patchy rain moving southeast across most parts, clear spells following but heavy, blustery showers in northwest. Very mild in south.

Monday:
Rain stalling across parts of Wales, central and eastern England, perhaps heavy. Drier, mild and occasionally bright further south. Elsewhere, some sunshine but showers too, these mainly in the northwest.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cloudy and very mild for most, with patchy light rain at times, mainly in the west. More persistent rain with strong winds across the far northwest on Tuesday, easing Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.